

Director's Note:

Dear Friends,

Welcome, and thank you for spending your evening with us.

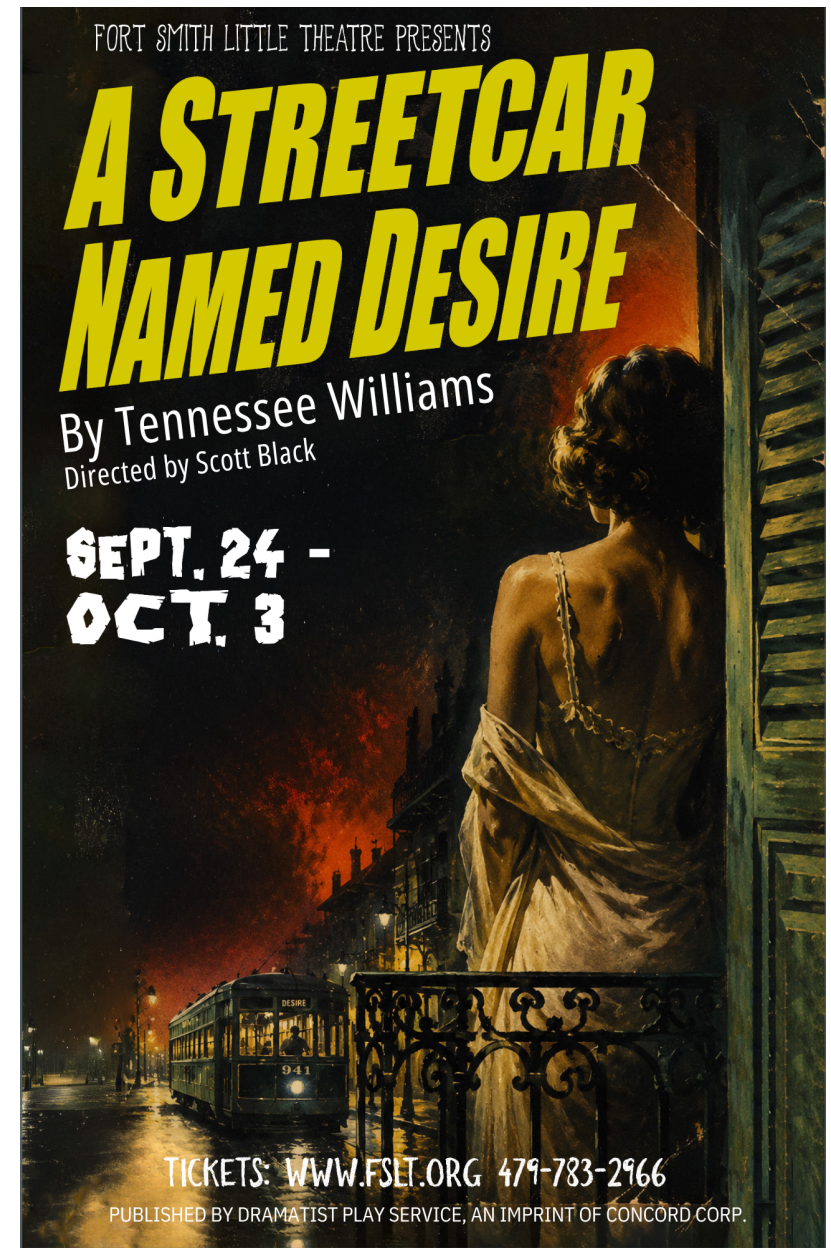

There's something I love about live theater that I try to remember every time we open a show: it doesn't last. A movie is fixed forever, the same frame, the same performance, playing the same way whenever you press play.

What happens on this stage tonight is not like that. It exists for the length of the performance and then it's gone. Tomorrow night's Blanche will be close to tonight's, but she won't be this one. This cast, in this room, with this particular audience. It happens once.

This cast has spent weeks building something they're about to hand to you, and then let go of. You're not watching a recording of their work, you're inside the moment it's happening.

I'm so glad you get to share that with them tonight.
